

MANY GRADUATES RECEIVE DEGREES

The University of Utah holds its thirty-sixth annual commencement.

THREE ADDRESSES WERE MADE

Governor Cutler, Former Senator Rawlins and Principal Eaton Offer Advice to Classes.

At the Salt Lake Theater last night the thirty-sixth annual commencement exercises of the University of Utah were held, and in point of numbers graduated and elaborateness of its ceremonies, the evening outshone any previous commencement. The dramatic feature came at the end of the evening, when the gowned men and women of the college department, and the normal graduates in white dresses and black suits, marched amid solemn music to the stage to receive the masterly diplomas and certificates declaring them to be no longer students, but alumni and graduates, with the duty ahead of them of fitting into places in the general life of the community.

The services were characterized by dignified and earnest speeches from prominent men of the state, giving a parting word of advice to those about to start in life, speaking as men who had gone successfully far along the road. The opening features were an essay by Miss Elsie Ward on the duties of young teachers, and an oration by Oscar Carlson in which he handled political corruption without gloves. Then followed a talk to the graduates by Prof. George A. Eaton of the High School, an address to the college graduates by former Senator Joseph L. Rawlins, an address by Governor Cutler, and concluding speech to the graduates by Principal Joseph C. Eaton.

Miss Ward, in her opening essay, which was entitled "Impressionism," expressed the ground that young normal graduates have come in contact with much more advanced methods of teaching than the old-fashioned way of years ago, and in consequence have a mission to perform in the upbuilding of the educational system. She considered the calling of a teacher to be a noble one, which needed the best efforts of each of those engaged in it. Then, too, teachers must be unwilling to accept low pay, and to teach in the small towns of the country where often they can do the greatest good. Her essay was carefully prepared, and well received.

Oscar Carlson, speaking for the college graduates, delivered an oration on "The Awakening of a New Civic Spirit." His speech was a powerful one, taking the position that the professional politician is the greatest enemy to American government, and that he is allowed to operate as the enemy of the people of the general public. He urged strongly that a new civic spirit be created in which the leading feature should be a general interest in the affairs of the citizen who is not looking for personal gain from the machine.

ADDRESS TO NORMALS.

After a selection from the orchestra, Prof. Eaton addressed the normal graduates. He said in beginning that they were graduating were little in need of listening to new principles, but probably much in need of thoroughly understanding those with which they had already come in contact. He advised them to proceed with confidence in the future, and remembering the lessons of the past. The place of the school he fixed as next the home in importance, and ahead of other institutions for special purposes. The teacher in consequence must not be a miller to grind all grists in the same machine, but must be rather a moulder to take the plastic mould of the young and shape them in the proper direction. He urged that as the stream cannot rise above its source, nor the student above his teacher, that the teacher have careful regard for his personal life.

FORMER SENATOR RAWLINS.

Former Senator J. L. Rawlins spoke to the college graduates, giving them the view of one well along life's road, of the best way to make a bargain upon it. He stated that till now the college men and women have been learning that the world has done, in the future they must be numbered with the forces which are doing things, and their education will be of value to them as they make it effective in service. He urged devotion to duty and to beliefs, despite the allurements of present gain or prospective advantage through giving over a principle for a little while. His speech was listened to with close attention and was greeted with heavy applause at its conclusion.

CUTLER GIVES ADVICE.

Governor Cutler spoke on the relations of the state to the college graduates. He reminded the outgoing class that it was through the bounty of the state that they had received the advantages of education, and now the state was looking for an accounting in good lives and useful service. He said in part:

"The state is willing to pay well, in order that the general average of education and intelligence may be raised, and the work of the community be more skillfully and efficiently done. There is an economy of effort in the disciplined hand. The power of mind over matter, the subjection of the material to the intellectual, is the principle on which you respectively will be able to go out into your respective fields of endeavor, take charge of large enterprises and prepare to conquer difficulties and compete with the intellect and skill of other communities."

I merely appeal to you who are receiving benefits, to prove yourselves appreciative of them, by manifesting even a better citizenship than we can appreciate. Your alma mater has been kind to you, prove yourselves worthy of her kindness.

Following this speech the degrees and certificates were conferred by President Kinsbury, to the following graduates:

There is the natural Phosphate of Potash and Albumen from which the life forces make the soft gray lining of nerve centres and brain, so brain fog and nervous prostration disappear for the user of Grape-Nuts.

Then again, in Grape-Nuts the starchy part of the Wheat and Barley has been changed into sugar by cooking at the factory, and as that is exactly the condition which starchy food, bread, cake, oatmeal, potatoes, etc., assumes after the first act of natural digestion has taken place, so we find Grape-Nuts has passed through this process, outside the body and is therefore properly termed pre-digested, a tremendous help for those who are a bit weak in digestive power, and so comes

KEITH-O'BRIENCO

SUIT DIRECTED AGAINST BONDS.

Dr. Ellerbeck Commences Friendly Action to Test Their Legality.

TEMPORARY WRIT IS ISSUED.

City Officials Directed to Appear June 15 and Show Cause in the Matter.

Upon an affidavit filed in the supreme court yesterday afternoon by Attorneys Stephens & Smith, representing Dr. George E. Ellerbeck, a temporary writ of prohibition was issued against Salt Lake City, Mayor Morris, Recorder Critchlow and Treasurer Harris, directing them to appear before the court on Thursday, June 15, and show cause why the sale of the city's bonds should not be prohibited. Thus a friendly test has been instituted and the legality of the special issue of sewer and water bonds in the sum of $1,000,000 will be decided within the next 10 days, and it is hoped that the sale will then be negotiated in time to save the option secured by the city on the big Cottonwood waters, which expire on July 1.

SUBSTANCE OF AFFIDAVIT.

The principal points raised in the affidavit as to the illegality of the bonds are as follows:

"That the city will not acquire absolute ownership of the water upon which the bond money is to be expended in enlarging the water system, but will only acquire a conditional ownership contingent on its ability to furnish sufficient water through its canal to exchange with the farmers for the big Cottonwood water. Such an ownership, it is claimed, is not within the meaning of section 1, article 14 of the Constitution of Utah, which authorizes the city to incur an indebtedness for supplying water, lights and sewers for the city when said water, light and sewer works are owned and controlled by the city. The section of the constitution referred to is as follows: 'That any city or town, when authorized as provided in section 2 of this article, may be allowed to incur a larger indebtedness not exceeding 1 per cent additional for supplying such city or town with water, artificial lights or sewers, when the works for supplying such water, lights and sewers shall be owned and controlled by the municipality.'"

It is further alleged that should the city be unable to make contracts of exchange with farmers owning the water rights in Mill creek and Little Cottonwood creek, it would be compelled to partially abandon the plan submitted to the taxpayers and the plan could not be carried out as voted upon by them. The question of the right of the city to condemn the water and power rights belonging to the Utah Light and Railway company is also raised. It is further cited that should the city fail to make contracts of exchange with the owners of the rights in Mill creek and Little Cottonwood creek and be compelled to condemn the same the entire plan would then be too uncertain and would not come within the meaning of the section of the constitution quoted above. Should the water bonds be declared illegal the affidavit states that the sewer bonds would also have to be declared illegal as they depend upon the same contingencies. The affidavit closes with a request that the defendants be prohibited from issuing and selling the bonds.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE.

The order to show cause issued by Chief Justice Hatch follows:

In the supreme court of Utah, State of Utah, ex rel George E. Ellerbeck, plaintiff, vs. Salt Lake City, a municipal corporation; Richard P. Morris, mayor of Salt Lake City; John S. Critchlow, city recorder; Fisher S. Harris, city treasurer, defendants.

To said defendants, and each of them, greeting:

Whereas, George E. Ellerbeck of Salt Lake City, Utah, on the 7th day of June, 1905, filed in this court his affidavit alleging that said defendants were about to issue, negotiate and sell $1,000,000 of the bonds of said defendant city under an alleged ordinance passed by the city council of said city on the 21st day of November, 1904, and approved by the mayor on the 22nd day of November, 1904, and it being further alleged and claimed in said affidavit that said bonds are void; and it appearing to the court to be a proper case for this order.

Now, therefore, we do hereby command said defendants, and each of you, that you desist and refrain from issuing, negotiating or selling any of said bonds of said city, authorized under said ordinance, until the 15th day of June, 1905, and until the further order of this court thereon, and that you and each of you show cause before our said court at the time last aforesaid, at the court room of this court, in Salt Lake City, Utah, why you should not be absolutely restrained and prohibited from any further proceedings in such matter. And have you then and there this writ.

Witness:
HON. GEORGE W. BARTCH, Chief Justice of said court, Salt Lake City, Utah, the 10th day of June, 1905.
H. W. GRIFFITH, Clerk.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

Those at Rowland Hall Last Night of An Impressive Character.

Yesterday marked the close of the school year at Rowland Hall, and the graduating exercises of the senior class. This service was conducted in St. Mark's cathedral in a most beautiful fashion. The students and faculty dressed in white, formed in two long lines on the main floor of the church, and down the aisle thus formed the graduates, preceded by the clergy, marched to the altar in front of Dean Edley, after reading the prayer, delivered a brief address to the graduates, admonishing them to honor the responsibilities of educated women in the world. As the graduates returned to their seats after receiving their diplomas, the winners of special prizes were called forward to receive them. These went to the following girls: For excellence in reading, Charlotte Weeks and Nellie Wilkinson; for excellence in Bible study, Francis Clark; for scholarship, Alice Nutting; for attendance, Martha Richards and Helen MacViech; for neatness in care of their rooms, Alice Quinrell and Florence Hunter; for general average in scholarship, Margaret Sizer.

Deputy Sheriff Edwards brought John Butler and Ben Camp in to the county jail yesterday afternoon from Murray. The men are charged with "rolling" a man in a saloon at Murray and stealing $3.40 from him. They were arrested by City Marshall Michael Mauser.
